STEINWEDEL

Wins For Trustee and Pomeroy for Assessor.

After a fierce and rather unfriendly struggle, the democrats have made their ticket in Jackson township. Chas. Steinwedel won for trustee and G. F. Pomeroy for assessor.

The result is not to the liking of the defeated candidates and their backers and some of them are saying so in language that is more emphatic than elegant. They are talking about the methods used to encompass their defeat and in some instances they get personal. In the race for trustee the stalwarts were for Leroy Miller and did not see how he could lose. Defeat goes hard with them and they will now let the other bunch go it alone. Marion Weddle made the race single handed and surprised the double opposition that confronted him. But Steinwedel took nothing for granted and had a big force of helpers who were out to defeat the other fellows.

The vote for trustee was as follows:

	NORTH	SOUTH	TOTAL
Steinwedel	67	210	277
Miller	147	102	249
Weddle	132	113	245

Steinwedel's plurality over Miller is 28 and over Weddle is 32.

In the race for assessor the party leaders did not give much consideration to A. V. Lawell, Henry Alwes, or Adam Maschino. They had "Bud" Pomeroy slated and it appears that they just tried to see how near they could come to shutting the other fellows out. But they will try and make peace before the election.

The vote for assessor was as follows:

	NORTH	SOUTH	TOTAL
Pomeroy	223	129	352
Maschino	42	125	167
Lawell	42	86	128
Alwes	28	73	101

The above figures shows that Pomeroy got twice as many votes as any other candidate but the other fellows were at a disadvantage because the slate makers passed the word down the line to nominate Pomeroy.

Both the nominees have been before the people in previous years as candidates and both were defeated. That is what will happen to them again on the third day of November.

Won Prizes At State Fair.

Miss Blanche Barrick, who entered some of her fancy work at the State Fair, was informed last night that her work had been awarded two first prizes and one second. One of the first prizes was given on a fine Tatting collar and another on a Tatting lunch set. The second was awarded on a crocheted waist, which was greatly admired by visitors at the Fair. The articles upon which the prizes were given are very beautiful pieces of work and show that a large amount of skillful work has been placed on them. Miss Barrick may place these pieces on exhibition at other fairs which are to be held in a short time.

Base Ball.

The Columbus Independents will play a double-header game with Brownstown on the Driving Park diamond Sunday afternoon and the first game will begin at 2 o'clock. Wiley and Dugan will do the twirling for the Independents. The Brownstown team is among the fastest amateur teams in the state and the two games to be played here Sunday promise to be the best of the season. The Independents will play at Madison on Sunday, September 20, and that game will probably close the season for the team, as there are no later bookings.—Col. Rep.

Entertained.

A pretty company was given Friday evening by the Misses Mains on West Fourth street for Miss Edna Jackson, of New Albany, who is the guest of Mrs. Omer Rinehart. The evening was spent very pleasantly at games and a musical programme was given, which was greatly appreciated by the guests.

Sprenger's barber shop is the best.

Serious Accident.

John Rhoeter, who resides near New Diftwood, southeast of this city, met with a serious accident this morning. He and a small child were driving along a narrow lane which was fenced in by a barb wire fence, when one of the mules hitched to the wagon gave a sudden jump and Rhoeter, in attempting to hold the child from falling from the seat, was thrown from the wagon.

In falling he hit one of the fence posts and was caught between the wagon and the fence. He was rolled and dragged along the fence for quite a distance. His clothes were almost torn from him and his body was scratched and cut. In the fall he fractured two ribs and it is feared he is injured internally. Drs. Carter and Applewhite were called to attend to the injuries. On account of the condition of his body it was impossible to foretell today what the outcome would be but it is feared that blood poison will set in, or other complications arise.

Caleb Powers.

The coming of Caleb Powers to this city next Wednesday evening to deliver his lecture that is winning him fame is attracting the attention of many people and he is sure to have a crowd. He will be here under the Modern Woodmen Drill Team and the members of that organization are endeavoring to let everybody know about Powers coming and giving all a chance at tickets.

Mr. Powers was in the city a short time today on his way to Bedford where he spoke tonight. While here he was the guest of Capt. Claud Carter and with him made the REPUBLICAN a pleasant call.

Typhoid Fever.

Owing to the scarcity of water and the low condition of the various wells and streams, it is believed that there will be an epidemic of typhoid fever unless there is a heavy rain in the near future. At the present time there are a great many cases of fever developed and the health officers urge that special care be used to prevent a further epidemic. In some of the cities the city councils have taken steps to eliminate so far as possible, the use of water from low wells or unhealthy streams.

We do "Printing That Pleases."

New Schedules.

The new schedule on the Traction lines went into effect today. By the schedule additional limited cars are added which will be greatly appreciated by the public. There are now three "Hoosier" Flyers and the same number of "D. xie" Flyers each day. Besides these there have also been placed on the schedule three new limited cars between this city and Indianapolis. Two of these cars leave Seymour and the other one is a south bound car making the station here the terminal.

The new limited cars will be a great convenience to the public and will lessen the through travel on the local cars. The traffic was very heavy on the interurban lines during the State Fair and some special cars were necessary to handle the large crowds. The Limited cars are bidding for their share of the through travel from Louisville to Indianapolis and the people are beginning to take advantage of these fast cars. The new schedule is published in another column of this issue. The new train schedule on the Southern Indiana will go into effect tomorrow. Several of the trains will be taken off the road as was published a few days ago.

Sheep Killing Dogs.

Sheep killing dogs, according to the State Bureau of Statistics, cost the various counties in the State during the year 1907 a total of $79,912.34. The reports also show that 9,214 head of sheep in all were either killed or injured by dogs during the year. Over one third the total dog tax collected was paid out for sheep killed by dogs. In some counties almost all of the dog tax collected was expended in this way. The total dog tax collected in this State during the year 1907 was $192,288.70.

Three New Princess Dresses.

Among the many new princess and semi-princess dresses there are three that stand out pre-eminently from the others, says Helen Berkeley-Loyd, in the October Delineator.

"The first is a close-fitting princess dress with two seams in the front and two in the back that run from the shoulders to the bottom of the skirt.

"The second is a semi-princess dress of the shirt-waist suit order and is especially designed for the delightful bordered woollens that already are making their appearance.

"The third is a most delectable Empire dress calculated to make the stout princess imagine vain things in her heart and betake herself to the nearest gymnasium.

Trapped in Cave.

Roy Bixler, a Haarisson county young man has had a "thrilling experience in a cave near Mauckport on the Ohio below New Albany, in which he came near being entombed sixty feet under ground. By means of a block and tackle he had lowered himself into a cave sixty feet deep to explore the cavern, and in the exploring tour he became fastened in a small opening through which he attempted to crawl.

In his exploration of the cavern he discovered an opening leading into another apartment, but when he attempted to return he found to his dismay that he was unable to get through the opening. After scrambling half way through, he shouted for help and some men at the mouth of the cave attempted to drag him through by means of a rope that he had fastened around his body, but their efforts were in vain, and it was not until a horse was hitched to the rope that the young man, badly bruised, was hauled through the small opening and was hoisted to the mouth of the cave.

Recalls Panic.

In 1893 the Monon railroad employed men on one-third time and so divided the work as to distribute the meager pay roll among its several employes. The majority of these employes ate only two meals a day and these in many cases afforded only scant fare. For nearly three years this sort of thing persisted, and yet Mr. Gompers proposes to deliver the labor union vote in toto to Mr. Bryan, whose radical doctrines the honest business men of the country fear far more than those of Mr. Cleveland. Will the railroad employes vote for a repetition of the bitter experiences of 1893?—Salem Leader.

Hanover Students.

Labor's Friend.

The Labor World, published at Pittsburg, and one of the strongest labor papers in the country, is advocating the election of Taft and Sherman. In its Labor Day issue it has the following to say of Mr. Taft:

"The Labor World draws the attention of all who work for wages to W. H. Taft as a candidate for the Presidency of the nation. His labor record and that as a judge on the bench relative to injunctions are published in this issue. We want every wage worker to read and ponder them. They will show to every intelligent and unbiased mind that W. H. Taft is a real friend of all who work for wages. There can be no doubt on this point and it is the duty of every wage worker to vote for Mr. Taft.

"Mr. Taft is pledged to continue the labor policy and the people's policy of President Roosevelt. This in itself is sufficient to induce every wage worker to vote for Mr. Taft and the party of Theodore Roosevelt. We may depend upon it that the free trade policy of Bryan, if he secures the opportunity to establish it, will literally ruin the industries of the country. This is the most important fact of all."

Automobile Party.

An automobile party composed of Dr. A. A. Reed and wife, Dr. Colglazier, Miss Blanche Wilson and Dr. Thompson, the chauffeur, of Salem, came to this city last evening. Drs. Reed and Colglazier are prominent physicians and are well known in this city. During their short stay here they visited Henry Rinne and family, Chas. Roeger and family and other acquaintances.

Our Farmers are "Stung" for Many Millions a Year for String.

Yucatan is scarcely a country at all—only a scrap of coral reef uprisen at the foot of Mexico. Yet this is the land on which the harvester trust depends for binder twine. Manila fiber we can now get from our new co-Americans—the Filipinos, but there is never enough of it to supply the millions of self-binders, according to a writer in Everybody's Magazine. Only sisal hemp yields abundantly enough. And Yucatan is the only spot in the world where sisal can be grown in commercial quantities.

Yucatan is smaller than South Carolina, with not quite the population of Milwaukee. It was once the poorest of the Central American states, but since the arrival of the twine binder it has become the richest. It sells from $15,000,000 to $18,000,000 worth of sisal a year, and the United States buys it all. Three-fourths of this money is clear profit, and it is an almost incredible fact that the forty sisal kings of Yucatan have a larger income than the owners of the immense International Harvester company.

Roughly speaking, the American farmer pays Yucatan $12,000,000 a year for string—mere string, that is used once and then flung away. It is an extortion and a waste, besides being the only un-American factor in the whole harvester business.

How can we save these $12,000,000 and completely Americanize the trade? This is a problem that William Deering tolled at for twenty years. The harvester trust has a problem. I saw it at St. Paul—a new factory, which twists twine from flax. A farmer's son named George H. Ellis has found a quick and cheap way to clean the flax fiber, and at the time I visited the factory there were more than 300 workers at the spindles. Two million pounds of the twine were sold in 1906, so that the enterprise is no longer an experiment. This means, probably, that the farmer of the future will grow his own twine. Instead of yielding tribute to the forty sisal kings of Yucatan, he will pay no more than the charges of the railroad and the factory. The flax will be his own.

Yucatan is the only cheap labor country that has been enriched by the harvester. Elsewhere it is the rule that the common people of the nation must reach a certain high level before the harvester trade can begin. Where human labor has little value it is plainly not worth saving.

THE NERVOUS SYSTEM.

Controlled by Sympathetic or Third Great System of the World.

The chemistry of the blood is largely, though not exclusively, controlled by the third great nervous system in us, a nervous system whose very existence the public has hardly heard of, but which physicians already know to be more directly connected with the life of the body than are brain and spinal cord put together, says Dr. W. H. Thompson in Everybody's. Physicians do not often mention it, simply because they know so little for certain about it. By the old anatomists it was called the great sympathetic, because it was imagined to distribute feelings all over the body, thereby causing the head to ache out of sympathy with the stomach when it was sour.

Both the cells and the fibers of this system differ in numerous particulars from those of the spinal cord and brain and it may be briefly described as consisting of three divisions. The first division presents a long chain of nervous masses called ganglia, which lie on either side of the spine from the head down. These ganglia are connected together by strands of their sort of nerve fibers, while others of them pass to make connections with the spinal cord, the medulla oblongata and the brain. The second division consists of ganglia, or masses of ganglia, lying behind the important organs, such as the heart, etc., which are said to innervate. The largest of these is called the solar plexus, lying behind the stomach, which innervates the liver, spleen, stomach and intestines. Other important ganglia innervate the kidneys and the pelvic organs. The third division of this system consists of numberless small ganglia distributed to every part of the body and all connected with one another, Auerbach's plexus in the walls of the alimentary canal from the esophagus down alone counting many thousands, whose relations are doubtless of much importance to the functions of the digestive glands, and thus to the composition of the blood.

MUCH FRUIT IS LOST BY THEFTS.

Growers in the Belt Affected Take Steps to Punish Offenders.

Over in Michigan there is an odd reason why the best fruits of the orchards and berry patches does not always reach the Chicago market. The fruit is stolen.

Associations are now being formed to put a stop to wholesale thefts that run up to thousands of packages in a single year. Individuals consider it a legitimate transaction to go into a berry field or an orchard in the fruit belt and help themselves to the choicest grades without hindrance. Growers have hesitated to prosecute, but the practice has assumed such proportions that there is now a movement to punish all offenders by the action of the local fruit growers' association.

In one of the counties of the fruit country the prosecuting attorney has been appealed to, and offenders are now promised trouble.

This state of affairs prevails not only in the Michigan territory, but in that of other states. A big strawberry field of eleven acres located in Kane county, Illinois, must be watched during the entire season in which the fruit is ripening. Would-be pickers march along the roads with buckets and packages of all kinds and seem to have no hesitancy in letting it be known that they are making for a certain berry patch.

Farther south in Illinois it is a custom among some growers to allow the public to pick the fruit when prices are so low that it does not pay to pick, pack and ship. Sometimes that is a glut in the market that affords the home people the chance to preserve a good supply of fruit for winter consumption. Barbed wire fences in some localities are used to save crops, and then a cross dog and a shotgun have to be kept handy to guard against the wires being cut.—Chicago News.

NEEDED THE BRUSH.

The Finishing Touch to Eli Whitney's Cotton Gin.

Eli Whitney, who so long vexed his soul over his first and mightiest invention, the cotton gin, was aided in his success by the quick wit and insight of a woman. In "Old Paths and Legends of the New England Border" Miss Katherine M. Abbott gives the story, as told by a granddaughter of General Nathaniel Greene, of the consummation of Whitney's experiment at the beautiful and hospitable Dungeness, on Cumberland Island, canopied with live oaks and olive trees.

Mrs. Greene had become interested in Mr. Whitney's enterprise and invited him to spend the winter at Dungeness, "where an abundance of cotton and quiet were assured."

One morning he descended headlong into the drawing room from his workshop in the fifth story and excitedly exclaimed, "The victory is mine!" In deep sympathy guests and hostess went with him to see the model in motion by which Whitney was to change the industrial history of the world.

For a few moments the miniature saws revolved without hindrance, and the separation of the seed from the cotton wool was successfully accomplished, but after a little the saws clogged with lint, the wheel stopped, and poor Whitney was in despair.

"Here's what you need!" exclaimed Mrs. Greene. She seized a clothes-brush and held it firmly to the teeth of the saws.

"Madam," said Whitney, overcome with emotion and speaking with the exaggeration of gratitude, "you have perfected my invention."

Aunt Hepzibah's Explanation.

Aunt Hepzibah was usually a careful housewife, and things seldom went wrong under her management, but one evening she left the lid off the big canister in which she kept her best oolong tea, and a half-grown cat crept inside of it and slept on the fragrant contents.

Aunt Hepzibah's horror on discovering it the next morning was heightened by the fact that she was entertaining a friend who was particularly fond of tea, and always used it for breakfast. The nearest grocery store was half a mile away, and nothing could be done to repair the mischief.

DAVID MADE KING OVER JUDAH AND ISRAEL. 2 Sam. 2: 1-7.

GOLDEN TEXT: David went on, and grew great, and the Lord God of hosts was with him.—2 Sam. 5: 10.

[Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.]

When Samuel called Jesse and his sons to meet him, and David also was sent for, Samuel anointed David king that day, but long years intervened before David came to the throne, during which Saul continued as king and persecuted David continually, seeking again and again to take his life. Today's lesson, however, tells of his becoming king first over Judah for seven years and six months and then over all Israel for thirty-three years (II, 11; v, 5). God's time had come, and in His own way His purpose concerning David was accomplished, and David refrained from lifting his hand in any way to be rid of his persecutor, leaving him wholly to God, saying, "The Lord shall smite him, or his day shall come to die, or he shall descend into battle and perish" (I Sam. xxvi, 10). The Lord Jesus Christ, the Lord's anointed, has long waited patiently for the time when He shall reign over all Israel and over all nations in righteousness, but the great adversary, the devil, is still permitted to continue as the prince and god of this world (John xiv, 30; II Cor. iv, 4). But as truly as David in the fullness of God's time came to the throne appointed for him, so, though nations rage and people imagine vain things, God shall yet set His king upon His holy hill of Zion, and the time shall come, foreseen by Daniel, when the saints of the Most High shall take the kingdom and possess the kingdom forever, even for ever and ever (Ps. ii; Dan. vii, 18, 22). See also Isa. ix, 6, 7; xxxii, 1, 2, 17; Jer. xxiii, 5, 6; Ezek. xxxvii, 21-25; Luke i, 30-33; Rev. xi, 15; xx, 1-6).

Whoever does not think it worth while to look up these and many other similar sayings does not deserve to know the purpose of God, for they evidently have no desire to know. The kingdom could not be David's while Saul had control, and the kingdom cannot be the Lord's while the devil is the prince of this world, but when he shall be cast into the bottomless pit for a thousand years then shall be the beginning of the kingdom, and when he shall be cast into the lake of fire forever then shall be the kingdom in its fullness. Let us not cast away our confidence which hath great recompense of reward, but, having patience as David had, remember that "yet a little while and He that shall come will come and will not tarry" (Heb. x, 35-37). While He tarries and we run on with patience let us, as David did, make it our habit to inquire of the Lord about everything: "Shall I go up?" "Whither shall I go up?" (verse 3). At least seven times it is written that David asked thus (I Sam. xxiii, 2, 4, 10; xxx, 8; II Sam. ii, 1; v, 19, 23).

How full of helpful thoughts is the name Hebron! There Abraham lived in fellowship with God while Lot dwelt in Sodom, and from thence he and his servants set forth to rescue Lot. SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1908.

IN saying that the presidential contest is "a case of Taft standing on his record and Bryan running away from it," Nicholas Longworth has constructed one of the best epigrams of the season.

IN a statement to the Indianapolis Star Friday, Ex-Governor Durbin has some very pointed things to say about the Indianapolis News and its misrepresentations of himself and the republicans of Indiana. The Ex-Governor puts the News in the prevaricator list and he does it in plain and direct language.

SOME of the Bryanites are finding fault with Governor Hanly because he is sometimes paid for an address he makes. They seem to overlook the fact that Bryan has grown wealthy from his fees for speechmaking. Twelve years ago he even charged the local democratic committee for the speech he made here in behalf of his own candidacy.

"I AM sending Taft to the Philippines," said President McKinley, "because he is the broadest and most unselfishly brave man I know, and because he will carry the spirit of the Constitution of the United States in his very blood." These seem to be excellent reasons also for sending Taft to the White House. The American people will undoubtedly show on November third that they have come to that conclusion.

THE last written work of the late ex-President Cleveland is a significant paper against Bryanism. Mr. Cleveland advises Democrats who believe in sound finance and individualism to vote for Taft. Mr. Cleveland says: "Mr. Taft's excellence as a federal judge is not to be overemphasized; his high ideals of honesty and justice are valuable and commendatory." Business Democrats will not support Bryan.—Lewiston (M. E.) Journal.

THE hitchrack question is an issue in Monroe county. The people at Bloomington seem to think they own the court house and public square and that the farmers over the county should not be permitted to hitch their teams there. The people in town want the hitchrack about the courthouse removed. The farmers insist that they paid the larger part of the cost of the courthouse and that they should have some rights there and they are right about it. But the commissioners have decided to put it to a vote in the county and let the people decide the hitchrack question.

Small gains are the rule in trade reports, although changes are often insignificant, and it is only in the aggregate that any tangible progress can be discerned, says Dun's review.

Some 250 buffalo, the remnant of the famous Pablo herd, recently purchased by the Dominion government, will be taken from Montana and placed in New Buffalo park on Battle river, in the British Northwest Territory.

Bad Symptoms.

The woman who has periodical headaches, backache, sees imaginary dark spots or specks floating or dancing before her eyes, has gnawing distress or heavy full feeling in stomach, faint spells, dragging-down feeling in lower abdominal or pelvic region, easily startled or excited, irregular or painful periods, with or without pelvic catarrh, is suffering from weaknesses and derangements that should have early attention. Not all of above symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time.

Neglected or badly treated and such cases often run into maladies which demand the surgeon's knife if they do not result fatally.

No medicine extant has such a long and numerous record of cures in such cases as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. No medicine has such a strong professional endorsement of each of its several ingredients—worth more than any number of ordinary non-professional testimonials. The very best ingredients known to medical science for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments enter into its composition. No alcohol, harmful, or habit-forming drug is to be found in the list of its ingredients printed on each bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. In any condition of the female system, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription can do only good—never harm. Its whole effect is to strengthen, invigorate and regulate the whole female system and especially the pelvic organs. When these are deranged in function or affected by disease, the stomach and other organs of digestion become sympathetically deranged, the nerves are weakened, and a long list of bad, unpleasant symptoms follow. Too much must not be expected of this "Favorite Prescription." It will not perform miracles; will not cure tumors—no medicine will. It will often prevent them, if taken in time, and thus the operating table and the surgeon's knife may be avoided.

Women suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y. Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser (1000 pages) is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps for paper-covered, or 31 stamps for cloth bound copy. Address as above.

IN HONOR OF DEEP WATERWAY

Taft and Bryan Will Meet at Banquet Table.

A NEW POLITICAL PRECEDENT

For the First Time in the History of Modern Politics Rival Candidates for the Presidency of the United States Will Meet at the Same Board and Address the Same Audience, but Politics Is to Be Strictly Eliminated From the Discussion and Deep Waterways Made the Theme.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—For the first time in the history of modern politics, two rival candidates for the presidency of the United States will meet at the same board and address the same audience, when William H. Taft, Republican, of Ohio, and William J. Bryan, Democrat, of Nebraska, are to be the guests of honor at the annual banquet of the Chicago Association of Commerce at the Auditorium on the evening of October 7.

This announcement is made at the headquarters of the Chicago Association of Commerce, which organization already had secured assurances of the presence of the two presidential nominees on different days for the third convention of the Lakes-to-the-Gulf Deep Waterway association, for which the Association of Commerce will act as host.

It already had been announced that Mr. Taft would open the convention on the afternoon of Oct. 7, and that Mr. Bryan would close it on Oct. 9, and that Mr. Taft would be the guest of honor at the banquet on the evening of Oct. 7. Mr. Bryan's acceptance of the dinner invitation, however, assuring a notable occasion, came as a pleasant surprise.

Mr. Taft's acceptance was obtained by President Richard C. Hall, Vice President E. S. Conway, and Secretary T. E. Wilder of the association, who have returned from Cincinnati.

The long-distance telephone figures prominently in the negotiations to secure the presence of Mr. Bryan at the banquet. The invitation had been under serious consideration by Norman E. Mack, chairman of the Democratic national committee, for some time, and he called up Mr. Bryan, then at Terre Haute, Ind., on the long-distance telephone. Mr. Bryan, who had retired for the night, arose, dressed himself and answered the call. He was informed, as Mr. Taft had been, that the banquet would be a non-political one, and that it would be held under the auspices of a non-partisan organization. He readily agreed to attend. The deep waterway project favored by the leaders of both parties, and is not, therefore, a subject over which any political discussion is expected.

There is no question as to which of the candidates will occupy the right-hand seat. It will be occupied by Mr. Taft at the express wish and with the full approval of the Democratic nominee and his friends. Chairman Mack declared that Mr. Taft, as a recent member of the present administration, was clearly entitled to the place of honor at the feast. The Ohioan, therefore, will sit at the right hand of President Hall and the Nebraskan on the other.

The meeting of the two candidates will differ from the meeting of the national candidates in the state of Illinois forty-eight years ago, when Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglass began their famous debates, by reason of the inhibition placed on political discourse. President Hall said today that he was greatly pleased with the success of the association's plans and that an attendance of about 1,000 persons was expected at the banquet. In addition to the great banquet room of the Auditorium hotel, the rooms adjoining on the ninth floor of the Fine Arts building have been secured, and the whole will be thrown together for the occasion.

Mr. Taft's Campaign Plans.

Cincinnati, Sept. 12.—Candidate Taft's first speechmaking trip will be through the West. A. I. Vorys has left here for New York to personally represent the candidate before the national committee in arranging this trip, which will take in at least the states of Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois and Indiana. Two other trips are being planned, one through the Eastern states and another through a number of Southern states. These, however, will not be worked out until the Western journey has been arranged.

Mr. Bryan in Wheeling.

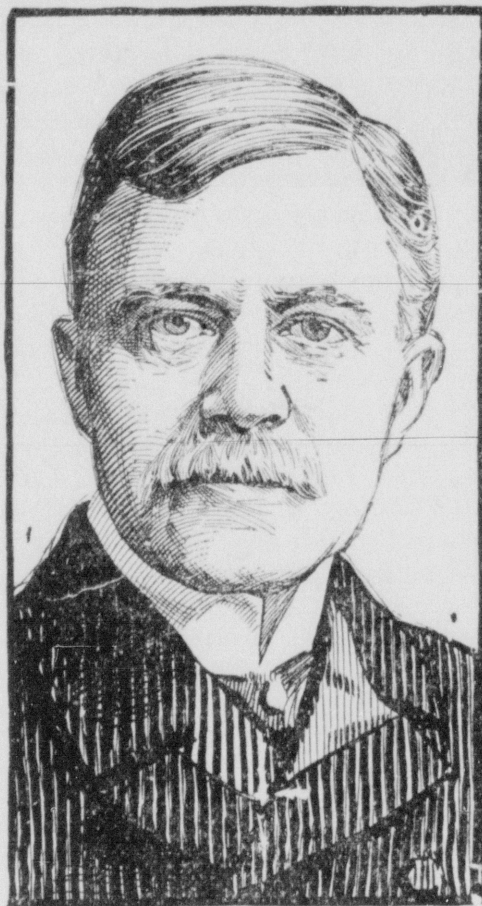

Wheeling, W. Va., Sept. 12.—William Jennings Bryan was given an ovation upon his arrival here Friday afternoon. A large crowd was at the station and cheered the Democratic candidate. So dense was the crowd that Mr. Bryan's train was run down in front of the Windsor hotel and a detail of police made a passageway from the train to the hotel.

ISSUED HOT REPLY

Colonel Durbin Doesn't Mince Matters in Public Statement.

Indianapolis, Sept. 12.—Colonel Winfield T. Durbin, former governor, has issued a hot reply to the charges made in certain newspapers throughout Indiana that he is trying to line up the brewery vote for the Republican state ticket. He characterizes the charges as bare-faced lies and challenges anyone to show a single instance where he has sought to influence any brewer on behalf of the Republican party. For some time there has been a story going the rounds that while the Republican leaders were working openly for the support of the temperance vote, Colonel Durbin was doing a "gumshoe" stunt among the liquor interests, telling them that the Republican party is merely making a bluff for county local option. It was charged this week that Colonel Durbin was doing his work with the connivance of the state organization, but he declares that the whole story is a network of falsehoods and that no one has any ground for such a charge. He pointed out that he has been advocating openly and sincerely the election of the Republican ticket because it stands for county local option. Members of the state organization characterize the story about Colonel Durbin as a campaign lie.

The Anti-Saloon League is making an effort to elect its friends at the special elections that will be held next Thursday to fill the vacancies in the legislature. Governor Hanly will deliver an address at Muncie Sunday afternoon, under the auspices of the league, in behalf of the Republican candidate, who is pledged openly in favor of county local option. The Democratic candidate at Muncie is outspoken against the proposed law and the league wants to beat him. The league is taking part in other contests and is fighting for Democrats as well as Republicans so long they stand for county local option. Superintendent Schumacher of the Anti-Saloon League has issued a circular letter asking the clergymen of the state to preach a local option sermon, making an appeal from the pulpit to the members of the legislature to vote with the temperance forces. Schumacher has asked the ministers to see their members of the legislature and urge them to "vote right."

TRADE EXPANDING

Bradstreet Notes a Continued Improvement in the Outlook.

New York, Sept. 12.—Bradstreet's weekly review of trade today says: The advance of the fall season and the notable enlargement of the movement of cereals and cotton to market at good prices have made for a further moderate expansion in jobbing and retail trade and collections. This is especially marked at Western, Pacific coast and Southern centers, but the point is made that agricultural sections have done better relatively than large industrial cities in the matter of retail trade, possibly because of warm weather or the reduced purchasing power of city workers and the high prices paid for farm products. Industries, too, have shown some improvement, notable in this respect being coal and lumber interests. There is an increase also reported in blast furnace capacity and there is more doing at the paper mills. In the textile trade little change is noted, and while the fall demand for drygoods, millinery and kindred goods have improved, the consensus of reports is that buying is frequent rather than heavy, and conservatism rules purchasing.

Big Cement Plant Burned.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 12.—The plant of the Cosmodale Cement company, located at Cosmodale, seventeen miles southwest of Louisville, burned last night. By the time a special train loaded with fire-fighting apparatus, had arrived from Louisville, the flames were beyond control. The plant was partially insured, but the amount is not known. The plant was owned by Philadelphia capitalists and was about to undertake a large order of cement for the Panama canal.

Gaining Command of Machine.

Washington, Sept. 12.—In a flight lasting one hour, ten minutes and twenty-six seconds, Orville Wright late yesterday surpassed all his previous exploits for a time and distance flight for a heavier-than-air machine.

BRITISH WEST INDIES SWEEP BY HURRICANE

The Island of Grand Turk the Chief Sufferer.

Grand Turk, Turk's Islands, B. W. I., Sept. 12.—A hurricane of great fury swept over Turk's Islands, devastating the town of Grand Turk. A number of lives have been lost, but just how many cannot yet be said. Grave anxiety is felt for the safety of Dr. T. R. Robertson, district commissioner of Cacao, who was making a tour of the islands when the storm broke. The wind reached a velocity of nearly 100 miles an hour and was blowing from the northeast.

Much damage has been done to property here and the streets of Grand Turk are a mass of wreckage. Trees have been uprooted, portions of buildings blown away and many houses have been partially wrecked.

The Haitian sloop Telegraph, which had taken shelter at Hawk's Nest, foundered with all hands. The schooner Dan Leon, belonging to the East Caicos Fibre company, broke away from her anchorage and has not been seen since. All the salt lighters which were moored at the riding ground and the Hawk's Nest are missing.

Grand Turk is six and one-half miles long and two miles broad, and, according to the census of 1901, contains 1,751 inhabitants, being one-third of the total population. Cockburn harbor, in South Caicos, immediately opposite Grand Turk, is the principal settlement in the Caicos group. Grand Turk is the capital of the group and residence of the commissioner. The town is neat and clean and the inhabitants, in spite of the fact that they complain of business depression, appear to be well to do. There are in the town several consulates, various stores, a good marketplace, and a public library and reading room. There are also an Episcopal church, a fairly commodious courthouse, a small prison and a schoolhouse. The staple export is coarse salt. The islands constitute a dependency of Jamaica.

Woman Caught at Crossing.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 12.—Mrs. Martha Beales, seventy years old, was struck and instantly killed by a fast westbound train at Montmorenci, nine miles west of here. She was crossing the tracks half a block away from the station. The accident was witnessed by a large number of persons.

LIFE.

Give me a taste of life!
Not the tang of a seasoned wise;
Not the drug of an unearned bread;
Not the grape of an untitled vine.
The life that is really life:
That comes from no fount afar,
But springs from the toil and strife
In the world of things as they are.

Give me the whole of life!
The joy, the hope and the pain,
The struggle whose end is strength,
The loss that is infinite gain,
Not the drought of a cloudless sky,
Not the rust of a fruitless rest:
Give me the sun and the storm;
The calm and the white sea-crest.

Give me the best of life!
To live in the world with God,
Where the seed that is sown and dies
Lifts a harvest over the sod.
Where beauty and truth are one,
Where the right must have its way,
Where the storm-clouds part for stars,
And the starlight heralds the day.

Give me the toll of life!
The muscle and mind to dare,
No luxury's lap for my head,
No idly won wealth to share.
Whether by pick or plane,
Whether by tongue or pen,
Let me not live in vain;
Let me do a man's work among men.

The Cruel Wooing

"Exchange! Exchange! . . . Well, why don't you, then? 8955A, Gerrard, please. . . . Yes, 8955A."

"Are you Macgregor & Wynne? Has Mr. Wynne gone? I want to speak to him, please, if you'll put me through. Thank you."

"Is that you, darling? You're not gone yet, then? . . . Oh, just dressing now. Well, haven't I packed the bag beautifully this time? Not forgotten the studs or anything. . . . Not at all, I don't mind being left a bit. . . . Of course not, sweetheart, I know you can't take me to a man's dinner. . . . Now, you're to have a good time and thoroughly enjoy yourself. . . . Yes, I've had mine—all I want. . . . No; it wasn't an egg for tea, then; it was an enormous meal! . . . Yes, and I'm going to have an uproarious evening alone. . . . You'll never guess. . . . I'm going to read some old love letters I found to-day at the back of an old desk. . . . Yes, letters I wrote years ago to a man. . . . Never mind who, you don't know him. . . . Why, it'll be awfully amusing. . . . What? You call it a 'dashed silly way of spending an evening'?"

"YOU THINK I CAN'T GET ALONG WITHOUT YOU."

She laughed softly. "Oh, Gerald, you dear old duffer; you're jealous! Well, that is funny. . . . All right, I won't keep you any longer; you'll be late as it is. . . . What? No. Of course, I'm not cross. . . . No, of course, I don't mind being left. You conceited old hubby, you think I can't get on without you. . . . Good night, darling; enjoy yourself. . . . All right, I will. . . . Good night, dear."

Maisie put the telephone back on the receiver and came into the circle of the firelight. She was pliant and pretty enough in a curiously indefinite way. Her soft cheeks and fair, fluffy hair were still those of a girl, but her mouth showed lines of suffering and her eyes held secrets—the kind of secret woman does not share with her husband. A shrewd observer might have suspected a hint of carefully concealed tragedy in her past life.

But she looked happy enough to-night and strangely young in her white tea gown. Sighing luxuriously, she settled herself in the big armchair before the fire, with the shabby little writing case on her knee.

The letters were mostly rough copies in pencil—scraps begun and then discarded; preserved heaven alone knows why, and forgotten long since. She had found them all together in the pocket of an old blotting book.

How many years ago was it, . . . four, five, six? Yes, it was nearly six years since she and Harry had parted. How she had worshiped that boy. She recalled their first meeting at a dance at a Monte Carlo hotel. . . . They had sat out in the gardens. . . . It had been love at first sight. The next day he called on her aunt at their hotel in Mentone and invited them to a picnic. His connections were irreproachable, and the girl let her thoughts rush out of that white circle of wifehood and motherhood—over the barrier which a certain prim prudice born of marriage had erected in her heart—back, back through six effacing years to that mad month on the Riviera.

What a wild, wonderful time it had been. She recalled the slopes of shimmering gray olives, the groves of orange and lemon trees where she and Harry had kissed, the long winding road up to Castellar, where they had often climbed hand in hand, the afternoons they had lingered on the plateau where the myrtle grew among the cypresses on the heights above Gorbio.

He would twist the orange blossom in her hair and put myrtle in her hands and call her his beautiful bride. The somber cypresses stood sentinel over them, and towering far above the eternal snow-capped hills mocked their little futile passion. But below glittered the deeply blue unforgettable Mediterranean; the dazzling sunshine was over all, and the intoxicating balmy airs of the south blew around them. . . . "Oh, the wild spring and his chances and dreams!"

Days of youth and fire; golden, passionate days. How immortal it had seemed—how quickly it had died. She remembered those few subsequent meetings in town when Harry had rushed up from the country to take her to lunch at Prince's or tea in Bond street—how he had chafed at the distance that parted them—the gradual waning of his love—the final disagreement that had ended it.

Maisie had destroyed his letters on the night before her wedding two years ago, with her own, which had been duly returned after the rupture. She keenly remembered that burning and how she had not dared read the letters first because her wedding gown was lying on the bed.

These few rough copies were all that was left. She opened the top sheet and recognized by the date that it was written after their parting. It was one of those pleading letters he had never answered, the memory of which constituted her greatest shame.

"Oh, Harry, I cannot lose you like this; you are twisted right around my heart strings. If the end is to come it must come gradually. This sudden wrench, this frightful blank, it's literally beyond my strength to bear. I love you with such intensity and such passion that I can't, can't shut you out of my life all at once."

Heavens! Had she really written that—only six years ago? Her cheeks burned with shame. She turned the page. Something heavier than a letter fell out of the packet on her knee. A photograph. All the others she had burnt before her wedding day. How strange it was to see his face again.

For a long time she stared at the rather cold, entirely commonplace countenance. It was his coldness, his aloofness, and a hint of reserve even in his most impassioned moments that had attracted her so powerfully. She had been wooed by more than one warm-hearted and tenderly sentimental young man, and the memory of these rather tiresome ardors had given to Harry's suit a spurious charm.

She had mistaken it for strength at the time. Looking down at the hard, selfish eyes, the thin lips, she knew it now to be merely shallowness. He could not love or give. He was one of the men that can only break the soil.

There was but one folded sheet left, and Maisie recognized it with interest as a copy of some verses she had written at Mentone. It would be more amusing to read them than the letters. They would probably be funny. Somehow her evening had not been so gay after all. There was an unpleasant savor about these ashes. Perhaps the verses would make her laugh.

"Funny; yes, they were certainly funny in one way.

"What trash!" she said, trying to feel light-hearted. "And yet they are tragic enough in another sense," she added, catching her breath. "How I must have felt them. . . . Heavens! and I wrote that about you?"

She tore the photograph across and threw it into the fire. The flames blazed up brightly, casting a momentary light on the picture of another man above the hearth. The woman leaned her arms on the mantelpiece and looked yearningly at the fine, clever face of her husband—the tender eyes, the strong, kind mouth.

She put her lips to the pictured face lovingly. "Forgive me, dear," she whispered. "I did not know—then."

The lights died down as the letters fluttered to ashes, but those dear, understanding eyes seemed to assure her of forgiveness. A great peace fell on the woman's soul as she looked around the homelike little room. That passionate vista of orange and cypress groves, southern glory and southern heat, had faded away from her mind. A crooning sound from the room above told of a child's awakening.

In haste she made her little wifely preparations for her husband's homecoming—cake and wine on the table, with his letters, in the fender his slippers. Then, obeying a sudden impulse, she wrote on a sheet of paper:

"Dearest and best, I love you better to-night than I did this morning. Good night, my own. Your Wife."

An ever-deepening murmur from above gave warning that the nurse's ministrations were unsuccessful.

"Thank God for a haven," she thought as she hurried upstairs.

"Thank God for safety and kind arms and a loving heart to rest in," and to the baby's little downy head as it pressed against her breast she murmured:

"Little son, little son, be very, very kind to women when you're a big man; very kind and gentle, my baby, for mother's sake."—Maud Churton Braby, in the Tatler.

Smiles of The Day

Still Vacant.

He was a dude of the would-be-masher type, and, tripping down the aisle of the parlor car, he dropped into a seat beside a pretty girl.

"Nobody—er—occupying this seat with you, miss?" he queried.

With a disdainful look, she replied in a tone redolent with sarcasm: "No, sir; nobody yet."

Good Ruse.

"But, Benjamin," said the good minister's wife, "now that you have installed electric fans in the camp meeting tent you should certainly grease them to prevent that squeaking."

"No, Maria," responded the minister; "the squeaking comes in handy to keep the drowsy members of the congregation awake."

Oh, This Modern Life!

Wife—Boo-hoo-hoo! That child has provoked me terribly to-day. I just can't stand it.

Husband—Why, what has she done now?

Wife—Boo-hoo! She ate those three charlotte russes I had in the refrigerator, and I intended them for Fido's supper.

Flying Steak.

"Fine airship you have, old man," said the friend. "What do you call her?"

"The 'Porterhouse,'" replied the sky pilot.

"Named after a beefsteak. Well! Well! Isn't that rather unusual?"

"Not at all. I named her that because she is always rising."

No Tobacco There.

"Why don't you try one of those tobacco cures for your son?" asked Gaddie.

"That wouldn't have any effect on him," replied Popley.

"Oh! yes, they simply kill all appetite for tobacco."

"But he smokes cigarettes."—Philadelphia Press.

His Objection.

"What is your objection to a man who tries to seem bigger than his party?" asked the political amateur.

"He's too much like a man trying to look at himself through a microscope," answered Senator Sorghum. "Not only is the effort ineffectual, but the attitude is grotesque."—Washington Star.

True Enough.

"I tell you," said Subbubs, enthusiastically, "if you'd only move out to Swamphurst you'd never live anywhere else."

"I guess that's so," replied Clitman. "I see poor Lunger, who used to live there, died recently on his way to California."—Philadelphia Press.

Very Particular.

Johnnie—Please, ma'am, is that me you're drawing milking that cow in the pasture?

Artist—Why, yes, but I didn't know you were looking."

Johnnie—"Cause if that's me, you've put me on the wrong side of the cow and I'll get kicked over."

Example Not Contagious.

How It Happened.

"Please, ma'am," said the husky hobo, "would youse help a pore feller wot wuz caught on a elevator an' laid up fer six months?"

"Certainly, poor man!" replied the kind lady. "Here's a dollar for you. How did you happen to get caught in an elevator?"

"De porlice wuz too quick fer me," explained the h. h. as he hastily beat it.

Unlucky for the Umpire.
Greening—I had no idea you were superstitious.

Browning—I'm not.
Greening—But you were carrying a horseshoe when you entered the ball park yesterday afternoon.

Browning—Oh, that was to heave at the umpire in case he got gay.

From His Own Experience.

"Have you 'What Can Be Done with a Chafing Dish?' asked the customer in the book store.

"No'm," replied the haggard-looking clerk, who had attended a welsh rarebit party the night before, "but I can tell you 'what should be done with a chafing dish.'"—Philadelphia Press.

Obstacles Removed.

"It's all right, prince," said the American woman, "my relatives have written me permission to marry you."

"Excellent! And did they say nothing else?"

"They added a superfluous postscript to the effect that I would be a fool to do it."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Vivacious Damsel.

"Your daughter," remarked the new neighbor, who was making a duty call, "seems to have a buoyant disposition."

"Yes," replied Mrs. Meadowgrass, with a sigh; "that's her only fault. She's a bit too fond of the boys."

Green—I hear you have been offered a big salary to go to Panama. Everybody is talking about it. Was there an account of it in the papers?

Brown—Oh, no; I merely told my wife and requested her not to tell any one.

His Experience.

"I suppose," said the bachelor, "that it is easy to get a wife."

"It is," replied the ex-bachelor, "but it's not so easy to keep one. A wife is an expensive luxury."

Lying Low.

"I know it."

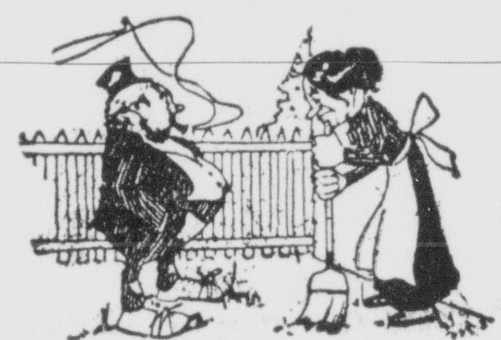

"What is it?"

Breaking Off Gradually.

Stern Parent—See here, Eleanor, I thought I told you to give young Snippen his walking papers?

Pretty Daughter—And I did, papa.

Stern Parent—But he still comes to the house.

Pretty Daughter—Oh, he's only been here seven times this week, papa.

Stern Parent—Only seven times! Great guns! Why—

Pretty Daughter—Now, don't be harsh, papa. He is trying to break off gradually.

NATURE AND A WOMAN'S WORK

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

Nature and a woman's work combined have produced the grandest remedy for woman's ills that the world has ever known.

In the good old-fashioned days of our grandmothers they relied upon the roots and herbs of the field to cure disease and mitigate suffering.

The Indians on our Western Plains to-day can produce roots and herbs for every ailment, and cure diseases that baffle the most skilled physicians who have spent years in the study of drugs.

From the roots and herbs of the field Lydia E. Pinkham more than thirty years ago gave to the women of the world a remedy for their peculiar ills, more potent and efficacious than any combination of drugs.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is now recognized as the standard remedy for woman's ills.

Mrs. Bertha Muff, of 515 N.C. St., Louisiana, Mo., writes:

"Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my troubles public.

"For twelve years I had been suffering with the worst forms of female ills. During that time I had eleven different physicians without help. No tongue can tell what I suffered, and at times I could hardly walk. About two years ago I wrote Mrs. Pinkham for advice. I followed it, and can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's advice restored health and strength. It is worth mountains of gold to suffering women."

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Muff, it will do for other suffering women.

Too Suggestive.

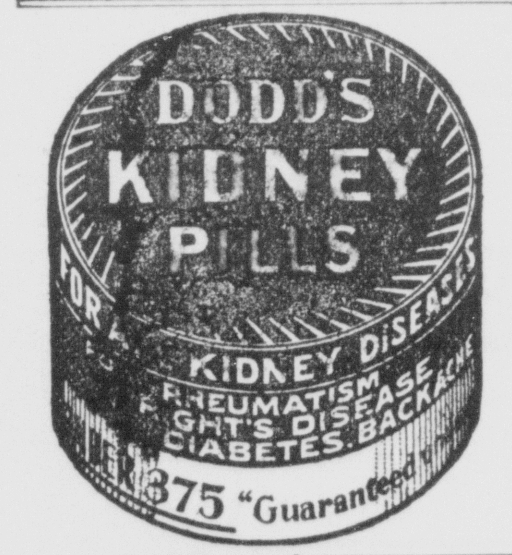

The prospective purchaser was taking a trial trip in the motor car that had been the most highly recommended to him, and was speeding along in the country.

"What clump of buildings is that over there on the right?" he asked.

"That's the county poorhouse," answered the chauffeur.

"Well, don't stop here," he rejoined nervously. "I don't want to add another to the list of men whose automobiles have taken them to the poorhouse!"—Chicago Tribune.

It has been frequently noted by aeronauts that the barking of a dog is always the last sound they hear from earth, and it has been discovered that this can be heard under favorable circumstances at an elevation of four miles.

Good Short Stories

A woman on the train entering Grand Rapids asked the conductor how long the cars stopped at Union station. He replied: "Madam, we stop just four minutes, from two to two to two two." The woman turned to her companion and said: "I wonder if he thinks he's the whistle on the engine."

There is a son of Erin in Newton, Massachusetts, who is quite a character. He has a number of children and was asked one day how long he had been married. "Well," he said, "there's Eugene is forty, and Norah thirty-five, that makes seventy-five, and Lizzie is thirty-two, and how many do that make?"

Douglas Jerrold's genius for repartee is perhaps best shown in his most famous reply to Albert Smith, whom he disliked and frequently abused. Smith grew tired of being made the butt of the other's wit, and one day plaintively remarked: "After all, Jerrold, we row in the same boat." "Yes," came the answer, "but not with the same skulls."

Royal names for hotels are sometimes the cause of peculiar misunderstandings. An aged farmer from the home county decided to make a visit to Toronto. It was the first time he had been at a city station and when a hotel crier hurried to him with the interrogation, "King Edward?" the newcomer simply smiled as he answered: "No, sir—Thomas Cox of Eramosa."

An Indianapolis man, wintering in Spain, lunched at the monastery of the Benedictines. After lunch he took out his cigar case. "I don't suppose you object to smoking here?" he said to the white-clad monk attendant. "Yes, sir, we do," the monk answered. "There is a law against smoking in the refectory." "Then where do all the cigar and cigarette stubs come from that I see about me?" "From gentlemen who didn't ask about the law," the monk replied, mildly.

The attendant was showing the lunatic asylum to the visitor, and opened the door to the first cell. Inside was a man sitting on a stool and gazing vacantly at the wall. "Sad story," said the attendant; "he was in love with a girl, but she married another man, and he lost his reason in grief." They stole out softly, closing the door behind them, and proceeded to the next inmate. This cell was thickly padded, and the man within was stark, staring mad. "Who is this?" inquired the visitor. "This," repeated the attendant, "this is the other man."

A lawyer once asked a man who had at various times sat on several juries, "Who influenced you most—the lawyers, the witnesses, or the judge?" He expected to get some useful and interesting information from so experienced a jurymen. This was the man's reply: "I tell yer, sir, 'ow I makes up my mind. I'm a plain man, and a reasonable man, and I ain't influenced by anything the lawyers say, nor by what the witnesses say, nor by what the judge says. I just looks at the man in the docks and I says, 'If he ain't done nothing, why's he there?' And I brings 'em all in guilty."

THIS FARM IS UNDER GLASS.

Cucumbers the Only Crop of Two Successful Kansas Gardeners.

The cucumber bids fair to become the distinctive national vegetable. It is now grown and is found in the market at all times of the year and from October to July commands fancy prices. Prices were low last winter, dealers say, but still cucumbers brought from $1.50 to $2 a dozen at wholesale and from 15 cents to 25 cents apiece at retail, according to the Kansas City Star.

Where do they come from? The commission merchants will tell you that the great centers of cucumber farming are northern Illinois and Boston and that from these places come the bulk of the supply found in the markets of this country from October to July.

Recently, however, L. G. Mackenzie and his partner, C. A. Willis, from Fulton, Ill., have established a cucumber farm at Olathe, Kan. This farm is a great hot house constructed entirely of iron and glass and is 200 feet long by fifty feet wide. It is the first of a series of houses which these gardeners intend to build at Olathe. The present house, together with the boiler house connected therewith, cost something over $7,000.

Within the hot house are great beds of fertilized soil, mazes of steam and water pipes and an elaborate system of wiring and cross wiring. The cucumber seed is first planted in boxes. When the young plants come up they are transferred to small pots, one plant to a pot. When the plants thus potted reach a certain size they are transplanted to the bed. The plants are not allowed to spread over the bed as in the open-air garden, but are trained over wires above. To these wires the plants are tied with "raffia" grass. The runners are carefully clipped off from day to day and the tying-up process repeated as the vines grow, until they reach and cover the roof of the great glass house, in which a temperature of 70 degrees or over is maintained.

Among the vines are several hives of bees and one sees the bees flitting from bloom to bloom doing the work of fertilization. The flower of the cucumber, however, is not particularly rich in nectar and the bees have to be furnished with artificial food.

In this house there are growing at present 1,000 healthy plants and many of them are already bearing fruit of large size.

The cucumber farmer plans to plant his first crop in September. He expects to begin shipping cucumbers by the middle of July following. During this period the first planting is gradually replaced by a second, so that during the season for hot house cucumbers the farm yields two crops. The cucumber vine is prolific and a healthy vine will produce from four to six dozen cucumbers. The growers are somewhat reticent concerning the quantity of vegetables produced and their profits, but when it is realized that the yield of this farm of 10,000 square feet will not fall far short of 200,000 cucumbers a year, it would seem that even at an average of 75 cents a dozen cucumber farming is not a losing business.

Of course, misfortune sometimes comes to the cucumber farmer. A heavy hailstorm may wreck his glass house and destroy his plants. And there is an insect that attacks the vines of careless growers and destroys the plants before maturity. Under ordinary conditions, however, the cucumber farmer has almost a "sure thing."

ECCELESIASTICAL EMIGRATION.

Ministers Transfer Allegiance from One Faith to Another.

Sixteen priests have recently left our communion and sought a more congenial spiritual home in the Roman church. Some of them had been, as is officially stated, contemplating the step for a year or more. From time to time we have noted their dispositions from the ministry of the church, but the action seemed to call for no special comment any more than the accessions, probably in the long run as numerous, from Roman to Anglican allegiance. We should not refer to it now save as a new illustration of the contrast between present and past methods of ecclesiastical thought.

The question of adhesions gained from or secessions made to Christian bodies to-day by conversion, perversion or whatever the process may be called, is a matter of individual rather than collective interest. None of the great problems before the Christian world is going to be solved by such action. One of the most auspicious features in the modernist movement of the Roman communion has been the firm resolve of its members to remain where they were.

The separated baptized members of Christ's church have little occasion to claim for their own particular organization, be it historic or be it recent in its origin, that in association with them alone is found the sole following of Christ or such a unique fidelity to his commands as to make separation from them an absolute loss, or adhesion to them an unmitigated gain. The supreme loss for all Christendom comes from that selfishness which professes discipleship to Christ and denies fraternity to men. The supreme gain will come from living down sectarian pride and from the confession that no processes of administration or organization can atone for mutual hatred or hostility between Christians.—From the Churchman.

TO GET POWER FROM TIDES.

Scheme to Force Tidal Currents to Run a Dynamo.

In an attempt to make ocean or river currents transmit power that may be applied to anything from thrashing a harvest to sawing the winter's wood, a Bostonian, Paul E. Collins, whose place of business is at 223 Tremont street, has about completed a scheme of paddle wheels and relaying gears which will soon be tested in the waters of the harbor, says the Boston Globe.

The originator has little to say concerning the invention, desiring to await results before coming out with announcements concerning the power and economy of his patent.

The craft, for it is a scow-like fabric, is at present moored on the East Boston side of the harbor. The wheels designed to flinch power from the tides are beneath the boat, one of the paddles being caught by the camera just swinging into view. Power from the wet is carried by chain and sprocket gear to a shaft on deck, and from there to the inside of the house, where a motor for generation of electricity passes it out and on to any kind of connection desired.

Bowdoinham, on the Cathance river, in Maine, has a mill run by the behest of a tidal wheel. This is one of the few tidal wheelmills left in the country. Indeed it may be the only one.

It is fixed in the stream at one end of the bridge spanning the Cathance, only a short walk from the Maine Central railway station, and when the tide is coming in the wheel turns one way, and when going out it turns the other. By a mechanical device the machinery is compelled to perform its appointed action, irrespective of the way of the tide.

Government analyses of so-called temperance drinks sold in England prove that they contain from 2 to 12.3 per cent of alcohol. The liquor laws of England take no account, for purposes of taxation, of beverages containing less than 2 per cent, but of 4,147 samples of supposedly innocent drinks examined in the last four years, 8,098 exceeded that proportion. Ginger beers and herb beers were found to have the highest percentage of alcohol, some of them containing as much as claret or Rhine wine.

It has been written over and over again that the North American Indian was always beardless. New light comes from an unearthed letter from Capt. Amos Stoddard, United States Artillery and Engineers, in 1806, to Dr. Mitchell of New London, Conn., in which Stoddard tells of a tribe of "yellow men, not in the least tawny, who lived near the lake on the west side of the Rocky or Shinnung Mountains, and who wore their beards, and a great number of whom had red hair on their heads." They were great experts with the bow and arrow. The lake referred to must have been Flathead Lake, in northwestern Montana.—New York Press.

At the last meeting of the Saltash and Callington district education committee it was complained that there were many school buildings so situated and so constructed that although every effort had been made to provide proper ventilation, the air in them during school hours was very unhealthy. The chairman remarked that there could be no reason why the four walls of a school should be the boundary of a child's place of instruction, and the committee agreed to inform all head masters and head mistresses that as often as possible the children should be taken into the open air for reading and oral lessons.—London Evening Standard.

Few if any of the passengers who ride behind him know that a Tama Indian sits in the cab of the engine as it speeds over the prairies.—Burlington (Iowa) Post.

Alfred Soderholm, foreman at the greenhouses of H. F. Littlefield in Worcester, has obtained a strange result from grafting which is attracting much attention. Last February Mr. Soderholm, who is a genius for experimenting, grafted Lorillard tomato plants on to potato vines. Now he has a number of double plants. Above ground are found tomato plants six feet high, still growing rapidly and full of green and ripe tomatoes. On the other end, in the ground, there are potatoes the size of an egg. There are no potato vines in sight, excepting those growing from the new potatoes. A strange fact is that these potatoes instead of ripening, are sprouting.—Albany Argus.

Declaring That Township Trustee Dillon Had Ruined His Home, Hale, Who Had Just Arrived From Nicholasville, Ky., Opened Fire on the Former on the Streets of Washington, and Left His Victim Suffering From Five Bullet Wounds and Dying on the Street.

Washington, Ind., Sept. 12.—With the remark that Township Trustee Dillon had ruined his home, a man named Hale, of Nicholasville, Ky., shot and fatally wounded Dillon. He fired five shots, four of which took effect. Dillon was removed to a store, and examination shows that his chances for recovery are few. One bullet struck him in the groin and this wound, it is thought, will result fatally. The other three shots took effect in the left breast, the arm and chest.

The shooting took place at the busiest corner of the city and created intense excitement. Hale is a brother-in-law of the wounded man. Dillon was walking down Main street when he met Hale and immediately began firing with a 32-caliber revolver.

At the first shot Dillon fled across the street, and three more shots followed in rapid succession. With the smoking weapon still in his hand Hale walked across the street and surrendered himself to Captain Wallace. On the way to jail Hale remarked that he had been looking for Dillon and had fired to kill. Dillon is trustee of Elmore township and, in company with his wife, came to Washington. He was unaware of Hale's presence in the city. Dillon has been trustee one term and he is prominently connected. He is thirty-two years old and popular. Hale and his wife have been having trouble, and Hale asserts that Dillon took his wife's part.

SNEAK THIEVES CAUGHT

Rob Wabash Passenger Station at Attica and Arrest Soon Follows.

Attica, Ind., Sept. 12.—Taking advantage of the temporary absence of the operator from the Wabash station in this city, two men got into the office through a transom and rifled the money drawer. They obtained $66, then hired a rig and drove to Covington to catch a Big Four train, which they missed by only a few minutes. In the meantime the robbery was reported to the Attica police, and by means of the telephone the men were found at Covington and arrested. The money was concealed in their underclothing. They gave the names of S. T. Phelps and Dave Flynn and Wabash as their home.

A satchel which they left in the station was found to contain a number of watches, belonging to both women and men, and the men are believed to be pickpockets who have been working the county fairs.

The Deadly Live Wire.

Delphi, Ind., Sept. 12.—Arthur Ruffing, the twenty-two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Ruffing, was instantly killed at the interurban station here. The young man, in company with Harry Eldridge, who is an electrician, was inspecting the different wires in the power-house and the latter, leaving the room a few minutes, heard his companion cry out as if in pain. He returned in company with the agent, to find young Ruffing dead near the lightning arrester. A physician was called and every effort made to revive the young man, to no avail. It is supposed death was caused by contact with a live wire.

Train Broke in Two.

Scottsburg, Ind., Sept. 12.—A Pennsylvania freight train running in two sections came together on a curve four miles south of this city. The second section broke in two, and the last part ran into the first part before it could be stopped. The locomotive telescoped the caboose, demolishing it. The engine was badly damaged and the caboose burned on top of the engine.

LAST OF THE DREYFUS CASE

Acquittal of M. Gregori Disposes of Historic Affair

IT IS NOT TO BE RESURRECTED

Affair Which Has Divided France Into

Two Camps for the Past Twelve

Years Is Now Declared to Be Buried

Beyond the Possibility of Resurrection With the Acquittal of the Man

Who Took a Shot at Dreyfus on the Occasion of Giving the Bones of Emile Zola the Honors of the Pantheon.

Paris, Sept. 12.—With the acquittal

last night by a jury in the assize court of Louis A. Gregori, who fired upon

Major Dreyfus during the ceremonies last June incident to the placing of the body of Emile Zola in the Pantheon, the Dreyfus affair, which has divided France into two camps for the last twelve years, may be said to have been buried beyond all possibility of resurrection.

The government, it was evident from the remarks of the advocate general in the summing up, did not want a severe sentence which would make a martyr of M. Gregori, but merely a correctional sentence which would allow the matter to die out. It was generally anticipated that the court would condemn Gregori to six months' imprisonment, and his complete acquittal partook of the nature of an anti-climax. Those present in the courtroom gave vent to their feelings according to their political views.

The day's proceedings in the court were uneventful and only once was there a possibility of a sensational incident. This was when Colonel Du

Paty de Clam passed Dreyfus on his way from the witness stand to his seat in the body of the house. As he reached Dreyfus the colonel paused perceptibly. A thrill ran through the courtroom and there was an audible muttering of "He's going to strike him"; but the colonel suddenly drew himself up to his full height, shrugged his shoulders contemptuously and passed on to his chair.

Walkaway for Hughes.

New York, Sept. 12.—It is semi-officially announced at the Republican national headquarters that State Senator Horace F. White of Syracuse is to be nominated for lieutenant governor at the Saratoga Republican state convention. The opinion is expressed that no other candidate for governor than Charles E. Hughes would be placed in nomination.

Shot His Brother-in-Law.

Erie, Pa., Sept. 12.—Ferdinand

Fischer, a well-known man about town, is alleged shot and instantly killed

George Cook, his brother-in-law, in the latter's vineyard near Moorheadville, twelve miles east of this city. The murderer disappeared directly after the tragedy. Friends say that Fischer accused Cook of estranging his wife.

An Irish Sea Serpent.

Belfast, Sept. 12.—A message received here from the Copeland Islands, a small group off County Down, says that a local fisherman shot a snake-like sea monster and secured the body. It is thirty feet long and six feet in circumference and has a fan-shaped tail and a head like a seal. Many photographs of it have been taken.

A London Sample.

London, Sept. 12.—The number of unemployed in this city was strikingly illustrated when 3,000 men surrounded and attempted to make their way into a hospital which had advertised for a porter at a wage of $4.50 a week and meals. An extra detail of police had to be called out to keep order in the crowd.

Restored to Duty.

New York, Sept. 12.—Lieutenant Guy H. Wyman, Eleventh United States cavalry, who was court-martialed on Governor's Island last week for certifying that he was a single man when he had a wife in Huntsville, Tenn., has been acquitted and restored to duty with the Eleventh cavalry.
